A doubt he makes — up enough courage to ask her to be his wife or else cease calling upon her, an alternative that was hideous enough to chill his heart.

The evening was soon at hand. A crescent moon shone in the east and the stars were cold and scintillating. He walked to the livery stable and asked for the cutter, and a few minutes later he was driving a handsome chestnut to the house where his thought spent most of the time.

Miss Farrington kept him waiting a good half hour, but he reflected that it was the privilege of her glorious sex, and it only made him love her the more.

If she had come out and placed her dainty foot upon his neck he would have been overcome withapture. In fact, in his present state, which had also been his state for 24 months, Littlewood was not many removes from a calf.

It was cold waiting, so he got out and hitched his horse and paced in front of her house, her faithful sentinel until death—if need be. Not that there was any reason to think that his services would be required, but it pleased his self love to imagine himself dying for this lovely being of whom his tongue told in such awe that it could scarce loose itself in her presence.

At last she appears. The restive horse slants his ears at her and paws the ground in admiration of her beauty.

For Mildred was as pretty as regular features, a fair skin and melting eyes could make her.

Littlewood handed her into the sleigh, stepped in himself, tucked in the robes and chirruped to the horse. That intelligent animal did not move. A flash of indignation overspread the face of the would be amorous swain. A balky horse, and at the start! What chance would he have to deliver his precious message that was to make two hearts happy?

He clicked again to the horse, but again the horse continued to stand still.

"You might unhitch him, Mr. Phillips. That would help," said Mildred in her sweet voice.

"Oh, yes—to be sure! I must have told him. I mean I—er—I did—I think I did hitch—er—"

"There seems to have been a hitch somewhere," she answered.

He stepped out of the sleigh and looked over his shoulder at her in a startled way. Could she mean anything? Was his encouragement? Oh, no! It was too soon. (Too soon, and he had been in love two years!) He unhitched the horse and once more placed himself beside his loved one.

The frosty night seemed to have set a seal upon her lips, for as they sped over the crunching snow and left the town behind them she was silent.

"I must have offended her. I've probably made a break of some kind," said Littlewood to himself. (How unfortunate! But I must tell her tonight. It is now or never. This attention is too marked to pass as a mere courtesy of the winter season. She knows I never took anybody but my mother's sleigh riding before.)

Then began a process of nerving himself to the avowal. He ground his knees together until the bones ached. His breathing was feverish.

"Mum—Mildred—I mean Mildred." And then he stopped. He had never called her Mildred before. He had never called her Mildred, either, but that was accidental, and he hoped that she had not noticed the slip.

So far as to the object of his affection his hopes of having a modest home of his own one day, and while he could not recall afterward that she had been treated any great injustice in his plans, he took comfort in thinking that girls are shy about showing their feelings and that probably it had not occurred to her that he would notice a little clerk in the grocery department.

So William dreamed his dreams, and even began to inquire around about the rent of flats such as he would be apt to require.

But he did not tell his love. There was no hurry about that. He would wait till spring—when rents were cheap.

And, besides, she was probably not prepared to hear of the hour he proposed to pay her. She might faint or something. Girls were apt to do those things when you took them unawares, he had heard.

So the winter wore on, and William spent more and more of his time talking to his fair neighbor, and fell more deeply in love at every interview.

To be sure, he did most of the talking.

He often confided to her his views on extravagance and high living and took occasion to ridicule those who spent their money on good clothes and their tickets instead of laying it up for a rainy day.

And while Miss Thompson never said anything he could construe into an admission that she thought he was right she always listened with grave attention, and with her soft eyes fixed on him he remained blissfully certain that here was a woman who would thankfully devote her life to helping him save his income and provide for his old age.

At last the spring drew near. The flower counter in the main aisle began to glow with golden sunshine of daffodils and jonquils and odors of hyacinth and Easter lilies were wafted down the stairway to the dim basement where their tubs and the teakettles had their home.

And then one day William had a shock. The crosseyed girl at the crockery department told him that Miss Thompson was going to leave.

He could not believe it. But inquiry at the glassware department revealed the fact that the rumor had spread the day before and had been confirmed by the young lady herself. William was astounded. She had made up her mind to leave without telling him! What did it mean? he wondered.

Then he had an idea. Perhaps she had grown to care so much for him that seeing him every day was painful. He had read of such things in novels. He resolved to tell her that very day of the plans he had made for her and ask her to become Mrs. William French.

It was long, however, before his opportunity came.

It seemed to him that every fair woman in the city had decided to lay in a supply of glassware that particular day.

At last he encountered Miss Thompson behind a huge pile of coffee pots.

"I—I—hear you're going away," he began, surprised to find himself feeling decidedly nervous.

"Yes," she said pleasantly, as she made an entry in her little cashbook. "I'm going tomorrow."

"Well, I didn't know—that is, I thought—I hope, I mean, that I've not had anything to do with your going," he went on, beginning to be appalled at the miserable figure he was cutting.

"You, Mr. French—how could you? I don't understand. I'm afraid," she replied, in evident bewilderment.

"Oh, you see—I thought maybe you'd be expecting, you know—that is, you might have known that I was going to ask you to marry me, you know."

"I'd have asked you before—"

"Fray, don't apologize," she exclaimed quickly. "It's much better that you didn't. A man with your ideas would be making a great mistake to marry. And, besides, I'm going to be married next week to Mr. Morgan, up at the silk counter. He commenced as a cashboy, and now he's head of the department. But, then, he was ambitious."

William has seen her but once since then.

They were having a big bargain sale of remnants up stairs, and at the noon hour he was struggling to make his way through the vast crowd of ladies which besieged the counter, when a little woman in a rustling silk gown turned suddenly and faced him.

It was she!

He passed her with only a formal and hurried bow, but he had time to observe, with pain, that she wore her hair in a pompadour. "Edgar Temple Field in Chicago Times-Herald."

She Helped Him.

Littlewood Phillips had been in love with Mildred Farrington for two years, ever since he first met her at the Hallowell's card party. He had no good reason to doubt that his love was returned, yet so fearful was he that he had misread her feelings, so much did he dread her refusal of his suit, that he had never blindingly made his love more than any of the girls he met at the church socials and card parties in Newington. Innumerable chances for a declaration of love had offered themselves, but he had never taken advantage of them.

So matters stood when a snowfall that brought sleighing in its wake became conscious of the fact that he had actually asked Miss Farrington to take a ride with him. Of course he must perform better matters to a crisis now. He was afraid that Judge Farrington would be asking his intentions, and it would be humiliating to have such a question come before he could refer him to the girl for an answer. No; beyond

Ten fire engines and two fire tugs poured water into the vessel until she settled and rested on the bottom.

The Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company are about to change the schedule of sailings on some of their lines, and will add a steamer to the route running between Montreal and Hamilton. Beginning Monday, May 20, the steamers Hamilton and Algerian took up the sailings, one leaving on Monday and the next on Thursday of each week. The sailing hour is 4 p.m. Heretofore the Hamilton has taken care of this trade, but this season the traffic was such that the company feels justified in placing on an extra steamer.

The schooner B. W. Parker, in tow of the steamer A. C. Parker, collided with the steamer City of Montreal about midnight, last Friday at Amherstburg. A large hole was stove in the City of Montreal's hull, and she was by the time she reached port she was half full of water, but the tug Home Rule got a pump aboard and managed to keep her afloat. The cargo of 1,800 barrels of salt was being taken out. She had to throw 100 barrels overboard in order to make the port. The City of Montreal bound for Sandusky, and her captain claims that the Parker took a sheer and ran into her. The salt cargo was very badly damaged, and there is no insurance either on cargo or vessel. The Parker proceeded on her way after the crash apparently uninjured.

The Pleasures of Cycling

Are wonderfully enhanced when the rider carries along a small camera with which to take a record of every pretty little scene met with along the way.

Pretty bits of landscape will be seen and admired, the sight will dwell in the memory for a time and then be forgotten. If preserved in a photograph the enjoyment of the scene may be constantly renewed.

Children at play, animals, birds, picturesque buildings, sunset, clouds, water scenes—all these and many more are within the range of the hand camera.

Anyone with a little intelligence can learn to operate a camera. The various operations are simple and easy to learn, and a book of instructions goes free with every instrument.

The cameras can be had in any size, from the small one made to slip in the coat pocket to the large 5x7 one for carrying in the hand or strapping to the waist.

The prices are low, from $2.00 to $35.00, and the cost of operating them is small.

BY-LAW NO --

Of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto to authorize the issue of debentures for $7,500.00 for the purpose of purchasing additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional Water-Mains, Hydrants and connections.

WHEREAS it is necessary to the proper adjustment of Fire Insurance rates within the Town of Deseronto and for the safety of the Town and convenience of the citizens to purchase additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional water-mains, hydrants and connections.

AND WHEREAS it is deemed advisable by the Council of the Corporation of the said Town of Deseronto for the purpose aforesaid to issue debentures of the said Town of Deseronto to the amount of $7,500.00 which shall be payable by this by-law and is to be payable in twenty years from the time of the issue of the said debentures.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient to issue the said debentures repayable annually for the respective amounts shown in Schedule "A" to be authorized by this by-law so that the annual instalments of principal and interest payable in respect of the said debt in each year during the said period of twenty years shall be as nearly as possible equal.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required by the Municipal Act to be raised annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest secured by the said debentures is $252.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto according to the last assessment roll thereof is $612,825.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing debenture debt of the said Corporation of the Town of Deseronto is $60,521.00 and no part of the said debt, either principal or interest, is now due or in arrears.

Therefore the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality to borrow the said sum of $7,500.00 for the purposes aforesaid and to issue twenty debentures of the said Municipality for the respective amounts and payable on the dates shown on Schedule "A" hereto, the said amounts being arrived at by dividing the instalments of the principal of the said debt in such a manner that the aggregate amount payable for principal and interest in each of the twenty years following the date of this by-law shall be as nearly as possible equal and the said interest being computed at 4 per cent per annum.

2. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality and he is hereby authorized and instructed to sign and issue the said debentures hereby authorized to be issued and to cause the same to be signed by the Treasurer of the Municipality, and the Clerk of the said Municipality is hereby authorized and instructed to attach the seal of the said Municipality to the said debentures.

3. The said debentures shall be payable at the Bank of Montreal in the Town of Deseronto.

4. During a period for twenty years beginning with the year 1900 and ending with the year 1919 there shall be raised and levied annually by special rate upon all the rateable property within the said Municipality, the sum of $552.00, being a sum sufficient to pay the amount secured by the said debentures as the same become respectively payable according to Schedule "A" hereto.

5. That the said debentures shall be issued and sold at such time after the passing of this by-law as the Mayor of the said Municipality may deem advisable, and the proceeds thereof paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said Municipality for the purpose and with the objects above recited.

6. That pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Act and amendments thereto, a poll shall be held and the votes of the duly qualified ratepayers entitled to vote on this by-law shall be taken on Saturday, the twenty-fourth day of June, 1890, from the hour of nine o'clock in the morning until the hour of five o'clock in the afternoon of the same day at the places and by the Deputy Returning Officers hereunder specified, that is to say:

For polling sub-divisions Nos. 1 and 2 Centre Ward at the Town Hall, Thomas J. Naylor, Deputy Returning Officer.

For polling sub-divisions Nos. 1 and 2 East Ward at W. H. Mellow's blacksmith shop, James Wight, Deputy Returning Officer.

For polling sub-division No. 1 West Ward at Mrs. Brown's house, Albert E. Gracey, Deputy Returning Officer.

For polling sub-divisions Nos. 2 and 3 West Ward at Wm. Jamieson's blacksmith shop, Heuben H. Bogart, Deputy Returning Officer.

7. That on the 25th day of June, 1890, at the hour of four o'clock in the afternoon, the Mayor or head of the said Municipality shall attend at the Council Chamber in the Town Hall, Deseronto, for the purpose of appointing two persons to attend to the final signing up of the vote by the clerk and one person to attend at each polling place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of promoting the passing of the by-law respectively.

8. That the Clerk of the Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto shall be the Returning Officer to receive the vote, and on the 26th day of June, 1890, at the hour of four o'clock in the afternoon, the said clerk shall attend at the Council Chamber in the Town Hall, Deseronto, and in the presence of the persons authorized to attend or such of them as may be present sum up the number of votes for and against this by-law and shall then and there declare the result and forthwith certify to the Council under his hand and under the majority of the electors voting upon the by-law that he approved or disapproved of the by-law.

9. That this by-law shall come in force and have effect from and after the final passing thereof.

"Example is Better Than Precept."

It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story. Thousands of testimonials are examples of what Hood's has done for others, and what it will do for you.

Dyspepsia.—I was weak and had indigestion. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured me. I am now strong and healthy. Wm. Williams, Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Good Medicine.—We have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family as a spring medicine and used Hood's Pills for constipation and found both medicines very effective. For further proof we know Hood's Sarsaparilla is a good medicine. Wm. Williams, Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
NEVER DISAPPOINTS

Hood's Pills cure liver, bile, and indigestion and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

British Shipping.

A very good idea of the importance of British shipping is obtained from a comparison of the tonnage of the British fleet with that of the other nations. From this it appears that out of a total tonnage of nine and a quarter millions passing through the canal more than six and a quarter million are British. This is an improvement of nearly a million on the figures of the year. The nearest approach to the English tonnage is far below it. The German tonnage is under 970,000 tons, compared with the British of 9,400,000. France is next with over 572,000. The revenue from Suez Canal was higher last year than at any time since the canal was opened. It was nearly $8,000,000 francs.

Is My Blood Pure?

This is a question of vast importance to all who wish to be well. If your blood is impure you cannot expect good health, unless you begin taking Hood's Sarsaparilla at once. This great medicine makes the blood pure and puts the system in good health, curing spring humors and that tired feeling.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, sick headache, biliousness and all liver ills. Price 25 cents.

The Good Old Days.

A schoolmate of Sir Oliver Mowat tells the Kingston News that in his school days "such depredations as pulling down fences, breaking windows, robbing orchards and such like were almost unknown," and this schoolmate regrets the degeneracy of the present day in this respect. "We were willing to accept the old schoolmate's story, because we do not know anything to the contrary, but it is interesting to know what brand of burglarized property the schoolmate boys up in those days. —Ottawa Tribune.

Remember

We don't advertise for mere effect, but for business. We know that, if you are subject to cramps, that you should have a prompt, efficient remedy on hand. No other remedy—no other—has a wonderful and immediate curative power. It relieves in one minute the crures in five. Pleasant to the taste and the best known remedy for pain.

A tomatoe doctor. Melita, Man, last Friday night, completely demolished the skating rink, the old Baptist hall and a number of stables and small buildings. It also hit the top of the stone wall, and half of the roof of the Grand Union Hotel. No one was hurt.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer of 1157 Howard street, Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery had completely cured her of a hacking cough that had troubled her for many years. "I had made life a burden," she said, "and other remedies and doctors could give me no help, but when I got Dr. King's New Discovery, it soon removed the pain from my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like a new creature, and I praise God throughout the universe" will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. G. Egan's Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

At the enquiry by the Montreal Harbor Commissioners, evidence shows that the SS. Gallia, when it grounded near Sorel, was going at too high a rate of speed, and that the helm falls to go over hard astarboard when ordered to back, in this position by the pilot. The captain's testimony was the pilot's duty to see that the ship was not going too fast.

SUNSHINE FOR COWS.

Gloomy Surroundings Are a Cause of Bovine Tuberculosis.

Cows, like plants, need not only light, but sunshine, says George E. Newell in the Boston Cultivator. In winter they are necessarily deprived of more of it than in summer. Now the pale sunlight, while it possesses but little warmth, is by each lengthening day increased in efficacy and should not be withheld from milk cows.

No plan is more insalubrious than to keep cows in a gloomily sunless stable, while outside the premises are flooded in the genial warmth of Sol's rays.

All cow stables should be so constructed as to catch every bit of sunshine possible, the more the better. To this end they should be well lighted if possible with south windows and these windows be kept free of those curtains of filth—colours and dirt.

Cows kept in sunless stables are affected about the same way that plants are in sunless rooms. They are sickly and have diminished vitality. In such stables the tuberculous taint, and all the legislation in the world will not obviate this disease.

It is for this reason that I earnestly advise that in a dairy barnyard, where you would have healthy, vigorous animals, capable of yielding a maximum quantity of milk.

It is for this reason that I earnestly advise that in a dairy barnyard, where you would have healthy, vigorous animals, capable of yielding a maximum quantity of milk.

The ordinary barnyard is a refrigerator in winter and a cesspool in summer, and for cows to go into it out of the stable is like stepping from the frying pan into the fire.

Barnyards should be the warmest, coolest, most cheerful looking places in the dairy premises. In other words, they should be a blessing and not a curse.

If properly protected by wind break walls, and in ordinary weather, cows can be turned out to their great advantage in the middle of nearly every winter's day.

The ordinary plan of turning them out every forenoon in a yard perhaps swept by cold blasts or permitting them to wander at will to the frozen stream, is what spoils their vitality and helps to render them "spring poor."

Milk Fever.

The question of the cure of milk fever is important, says a correspondent of the London Live Stock Journal, but that of prevention more so. I farm a lot of very poor marshes, growing mainly rashes and blue grass, too poor to keep young stock going. These I feed with dry cows from June to the end of September. In some cases they get milk fever, but the cows come in very poor though with a fair flow of milk.

My neighbor has a rich upland park, keeping about half a dozen cows, and rearing their calves. He always loses a cow or two from milk fever, and a year from milk fever; occasionally he has had cows from this farm, and they go down just like his own.

His cows are almost always fit for the butcher, and his calves cost double what his do while in the pen. Always poor. Most important point in this complaint is plenty of exercise. Question dealers who move their cows from market to market and they will tell you they advise a walk of ten or twelve miles a week before calving, and you will find the danger very much lessened.

If driven slowly she will get sufficient feed of the road, and may be put on a bare pasture with a few poor hay and plenty of water. This will do much and plenty of water. This will do much and plenty of water. This will do much and plenty of water.

The Doctors Puzzled.

THE PECULIAR CASE OF A NOVA SCOTIAN LADY.

THE TROUBLE BEGAN IN A SWELLING OF THE BIG TOE, WHICH SPREAD TO ALL PARTS OF THE BODY—DOCTORS COULD NOT ACCOUNT FOR THE TROUBLE, AND THEIR TREATMENT DID HER NO GOOD.

Look Broom is a picturesque farming household, in a beautiful valley of the town of Pictou, N. S. In this hamlet, in a cozy farmhouse, live Mrs. Broom and her family.

A few years ago Mrs. Broom was taken with a disease that puzzled several of the best medical men. It was generally known that Mrs. Broom had her ultimate recovery to good health to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

At the time of the trouble, Mrs. Broom was a young woman, and the trouble was a swelling of the big toe, which spread to all parts of the body.

IRISH CATTLE.

They Are Said to Be Well Adapted to the South.

A correspondent of The Breeder's Gazette says that there is one breed of cattle that is worthy of the attention of the southern cattlemen in quest of an animal of dual character, and they may be suitable for the production of both powers alike of milk and meat production, with capacity to live and thrive where other breeds have degenerated.

The breed is the Kerry, a native of Ireland, which, while they have never been exploited in this country, they are very favorably known in South Africa, South America and the Antilles—a breed that is able to maintain its excellence in environments that have probably a more extended range of climate and food than any other alien breed has tried. Their peculiarity seems to increase as their very valuable characteristics are better known. They are hardy of constitution, abundant milk producers and ready fatteners, with a prime quality of meat, small joints and a good proportion of lean that ought to be popular with consumers of beef in the south.

BY-LAW NO. --

Of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto to authorize the issue of debentures for $7,500.00 for the purpose of purchasing additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional Water-Mains, Hydrants and connections.

WHEREAS it is necessary to the proper adjustment of Fire Insurance rates within the Town of Deseronto and for the safety of the Town and convenience of the citizens to purchase additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional water-mains, hydrants and connections;

AND WHEREAS it is deemed advisable by the Council of the Corporation of the said Town of Deseronto for the purpose aforesaid to issue debentures of the said Town to the amount of $7,500.00 which is the debt to be created by this by-law and is to be payable in twenty years from the time of the issue of the said debentures.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient to issue the said debentures payable annually for the respective amounts shown in the Schedule "A" to this by-law so that the annual instalments of principal and interest payable in respect of the said debt in each year during the said period of twenty years shall be as nearly as possible equal.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required by the Municipal Act to be raised annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest secured by the said debentures is $652.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is $612,825.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing debt of the said Corporation of the Town of Deseronto is $69,524.00 and no part of the said debt, either principal or interest, is now due or in arrear.

Therefore, the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality to borrow the said sum of $7,500.00 for the purposes aforesaid by the issue of twenty debentures of the said Municipality for the respective amounts and payable on the dates shown on Schedule "A" hereto, the said amount of the said debentures to be being arrived at by dividing the instalments of the principal of the said debt in such a manner that the aggregate amount payable for principal and interest in each of the twenty years following the date of this by-law shall be as nearly as possible equal and the said interest being computed at 4 per cent. per annum.

2. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality and he is hereby authorized and instructed to sign and issue the said debentures hereby authorized to be issued.

DAIRY CREAMERY

CONVENIENT COW STALLS.

Simple Devices Which Farmers May Erect For Themselves.

George E. Scott describes in Hoard's Dairyman a cow stall which bears his name. While Fig. 1 gives a perfect rear view, Fig. 2 will explain more clearly the side section and measurements.

The platform, A, is made of 1 inch oak, doubled and jointed, with a fall of two inches, and is 6 feet 6 inches long for a cow weighing 1,000 pounds and should be correspondingly longer or shorter as the weight of the cow may require.

This feature may be provided for by placing the fencing, in front of the cow nearer toward the ditch or farther away, or sometimes the ditch is run at an angle or an offset at one end, but the former is by all means the most satisfactory.

The feed trough, B, is raised by running two 2 by 8 stringers the entire length of the stable, making the trough 18 inches wide and 6 inches deep in front of the cow. The stalls are 3 feet 8 inches wide from center to center and partitioned 4 feet high and 8 feet 6 inches long at C. The posts, D, are 3 feet high, made from 2 by 3 studding, and toe nailed in the corner of each feed box at F and by 3 inch nails to tie for the cow to eat hay through and to keep her standing back to her ditch.

The hayrack at E is 18 inches wide and 3 feet deep to F, and is open with a 6 inch thwart, so that grain, ensilage or any cut feed readily falls through into feed box. The ditch is 16 inches wide and 9 inches deep on platform side and 7 inches at rear and is made absolutely water tight. The latter feature, along with the broken joints on the platform, always insures good sanitation, as every particle of manure and liquid voiding where absorbent and deodorizers can be applied upon the stable in shape so that its caretaker can keep it pure and sweet with little effort and have some place to take call when showing his best cows without having to meddle and sniff the visit with an apology.

Any farmer, I think, can erect this stall with the use of a good saw, hatchet, jack plane and square at a trifling cost.

and when once completed am positive that it will be a great source of pride to the dairyman who has it in his barn.

After four years of use and keeping cows confined from four to five months each winter day and night am able to say that it is a perfect stall, and not only keeps the cows perfectly clean, but have not seen a stall that gives the cow so much freedom for her head and body

Dairy Business.

It is noticeable that in every community in which the dairy is well developed there is a high degree of prosperity and refinement. The influence of the business is uplifting. It requires intelligence and a wide study to make the business a success, and all this is on the line of refinement. It demands gentleness of disposition. No rough, brutal man can achieve success in the dairy. He must be kind, and, if not naturally so, he must cultivate the spirit of kindness. The cow must be loved, must be petted, must be fed well and fed properly, and all this leads to the broadening of the mind and the improvement of our natures. Then there must be cleanliness not only about the premises, but about the person. An Indiana dairyman has a covered barnyard, and he was asked at an institute if he was satisfied with that way of keeping manure. "Why," said he, "I do not have a covered barnyard for the purpose of keeping manure. All the manure is hauled out as soon as made in order to keep the yard clean. I constructed a cover over the yard for the comfort of my cows." There was a whole volume of dairy instruction in those few words. The watchwords to preserve cleanliness and the kindness to the cows are the cornerstones to successful dairying.—Practical Dairyman.

British Appetite.

Some idea of how much the British people eat may be gathered from the amount of butter and oleomargarine imported last year. Of butter the imports were $29,000,000 and of oleomargarine $9,897,500 pounds. The butter imported cost the people of Great Britain $90,800,535 and the oleomargarine $11,938,879. Denmark furnished 20 per cent of the butter and Canada only about 3 per cent.

Modern Surgery.

"The average man would be greatly surprised to know how far the surgical world has moved in the last quarter of a century," said a prominent New Orleans practitioner. "It's hard to realize, even for those in the profession. We do things as a matter of course at present that only a few years ago would have been looked upon as downright murder."

"I remember back in the seventies I was called to attend a man who was shot, making a number of perforations. I promptly opened the abdominal cavity and sewed up the wounds, which at that time was regarded as a wildly daring operation. The man died from unavoidable complications, and his friends were determined to prosecute me for killing him. In fact, I had a close squeak from unpleasant consequences, for a great many other surgeons condemned my procedure in the severest terms."

"Just think of it! Today things are exactly reversed and a surgeon who failed to open the abdomen in such a case would undoubtedly be punished for malpractice. This is one instance out of many. It is no exaggeration to say that the modern surgeon saves thousands of lives that his earlier brothers would have abandoned without an effort. 'Necessarily fatal' would have been the verdict and the sufferer assisted into the valley of the shadow by a merciful opiate."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Effort to Create Life.

The news that Wohler had obtained, in 1828, out of inorganic stuffs a certain substance, urea, which occurs in nature as a distinct product of vital activity in animals, upset current ideas. Then later on, in 1828, in Germany and Frankland in this country made several important syntheses, and in 1860 Berthelot published his epoch making work, "Organic Chemistry Based Upon Synthesis," in which he proved that the synthesis of organic bodies may be performed and may be achieved in a quite systematic way, going step by step over the whole series of organic compounds.

At the present time about 180 different acids, aromatic oils, fats, coloring matters, and so on, which are only found in nature as products of vital activity, have already been prepared in our laboratories out of inorganic matter. Some of them are already fabricated in this way for us. Every year brings some new achievement in the same direction; so that the main interest now lies, not so much in adding a new product to the already long list of chemically prepared organic substances, as in catching the secrets of the tiny living laboratories in the structure and animal cells.—Prince Krapotkin in Nineteenth Century.

Without Shuffling or Evasion.

From Esquimaux to the tropics, authorities we have gained the impression that the Indian is a stolid, severe individual, with no sense of the white man's humor, but one red brother showed himself quite a civilized joker in the United States court. He was on the stand in a hot contest case. Attorney D. R. Bailey of Sioux Falls was after him in the most approved fashion of cross examination. Finally, after apparently frightening the Indian with the awful consequences which would follow the slightest deviation from the truth, Mr. Bailey took his most portentous tone and solemn manner and demanded:

"Now, sir, I want you to tell me the exact truth, without any shuffling or evasion. I want you to look me square in the eye and tell me how you get your living, sir."

The Indian looked straight at Mr. Bailey, and, with that imperturbable air familiar to all acquainted with the red man simply said, "Eat."

The courtroom roared, even Judge Carland smiled and Mr. Bailey let the witness go.

Good For a Whole Chapter.

The overturned coaches lay at the foot of the embankment, where they had rolled when the train left the track. The wrecking train had arrived, the crew had gone to work, and the wounded had all been cared for.

"Will you please tell me your personal experience in the accident?" asked a reporter, whipping out his notebook.

"You will read about them, sir," replied the solemn looking passenger with a slightly foreign accent, whom he had addressed, "in the book I shall certainly publish about this country."—Chicago Tribune.

Well Answered.

In the course of a lecture to an unimpressible Scotch audience De Rongeumont, talking of "the dear, dead days," explained that he had a good memory of a better imagination. An unbeliever in the unreserved seats persisted in asking unanswerable questions, which ultimately brought out an interesting reflection.

"I can always find," said the wanderer, "that it was enough for one as to bray at a time."

An Honest Admission.

"She—You are hypocritical. The fact is, you don't like German opera. He—Oh, I don't know. It isn't so bad—that is, you know, to the man who is very hard of hearing."—Boston Transcript.

A Pleasant Pose.

"Emeline, you are not happy. What makes you pretend that you are?" "Because artificial happiness is lots better than none at all."—San Francisco Examiner.

The Last Man Wins.

"They say the secret of success is tenacity of purpose."

"Of course; if you hold on long enough, competitors die off."—Chicago Record.

MARINE.

The Monitor loaded lumber for Pictou.

The Nile took a load of lumber to Morristown, N. Y.

The new boilers for the steamer Reliance are expected to arrive in a few days.

The steamer Nichols took pulp wood to Dexter, N. Y., as also did the schooner Two Brothers.

The steamer Resolute makes three times a week to Oswego, Buffalo, etc., as regularly as clock work.

The American yacht Stella came in from Sackett's Harbor and took on a cargo of lumber and shingles for Pillar Point, N. Y.

Passenger traffic on the Bay of Quinte was never better than it is this season. The Deseronto Navigation Company's fleet are doing their share of the business.

Belleville was supplied with bunch wood from Deseronto by the schooner Echo and the schooner Little Ann.

Five boats of the name to O. Line called here during the week. The Hero, Varuna, North King and Alexandria were also in port on their regular trips. All had good passenger lists.

Seven hundred men, employed as shipbuilders and boiler-makers in the various shipbuilding plants of Baltimore, Md., struck on Saturday, and, as a consequence, the shipbuilding industry is practically at a standstill. They wish to work an hour less a day, but do not want any reduction in wages.

The tug Walker, which sunk off Brighton some time ago, is on its way to Garden Island in tow of two tugs. She was made ready to start yesterday morning. She had been brought almost to the surface once before, but the chains holding her parted and she settled on the bottom. Donnelly Bros., of Kingston, have the contract of raising her and putting her on the ways.

The funeral of Alexander Milloy, late traffic manager of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, took place from his late residence, 32 Montgomery street, Montreal, on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A large number attended the ceremony. Among the chief mourners were the trustees and colleagues of the deceased in the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company; members of the Prince of Wales Rifles, of which he was formerly a member, and many others.

AT THE INCUBATOR SHOW.

Conflicting Opinions on Important Points—Transferring Eggs.

To any one interested in poultry raising the incubator room at such a show as that recently held in Madison Square Garden, New York, is full of attractions. The beginner in the poultry industry, especially if he is thinking of adapting artificial hatching, becomes fascinated and bewildered as he goes from one to another of the machines and listens to the stories told by their makers. The common, everyday lover of chickens, who isn't the owner of a pen of any kind of fowls and never expects to be, looks on and listens with beaming face, such as one sees in the gallery just about the time the heroine in a thrill voice says to the villain: "Leave me! I detest you!"

The young man who had visited the show with the intention of deciding which of the many incubators he would adopt said he felt just as he did when he was selecting his first bicycle. Every maker had his best machine, and each one had accumulated so many blue ribbons that the question of storing and caring for them was a serious problem at his factory. As a matter of fact, the various makers are similar in most of their characteristics. The application and regulation of the heating are the points upon which there is widest difference in construction, and the experience views on the subject of moisture furnish the greatest variety in the field of theory. Some incubator makers claim that no artificial moisture is required; that, in fact, it is detrimental. Others insist that moisture must be supplied in liberal quantity. Between these two classes are those who say moisture must be supplied by the machine under certain conditions of atmosphere and surroundings, and each moisture, anti-moisture, or semi-moisture advocate makes his machine to fit his theories. And the young man makes his selection just as he selected his bicycle—in some doubt. "But, everything considered, I think my choice was wise." In a week he is ready to gamble that he's got the best machine ever made.

To the sentimental miss and the children, who know nothing of heat and moisture problems and care less, the most interesting part of the incubator show is the story of the young chicks who have just left their shellhouses and trilled into the nursery under the egg tray. "Ain't they cute!" "The dear little fuzzy things!" "Just look at that little black rascal!" are some of the remarks that one hears. It is worth about 15 years, with high forehead and a bewitching air, says, "How did you hatch these chicks in the four days since the show opened?" "They weren't hatched in four days, my young friend. They have been the usual 20 days in getting here."

"Oh, you put the incubators in here more than two weeks before the show opened?"

"We started the eggs at home, and the day before the show opened we took them out of the machines, wrapped each one carefully in cotton batting and packed them in wash baskets with sheets of batting between the layers. They were shipped by express, and a special caretaker rode in the car to see that the baskets were not roughly handled. We had two machines warmed up ready to receive the eggs. The transfer delayed the hatch to some extent—say about one hour for each two hours that the eggs were out of the machine—but the chicks all arrived, if not on schedule time, just the same as if the eggs hadn't been moved."

"Thank you," remarked the youth with the high forehead. "Isn't it queer?" inquired a very handsome young woman, and though no one audibly answered her profound query all nodded their heads slowly, as if cogitating over a big and a serious question. Incubating will make the stupidest or the most indifferent chap pause and consider if he will stand a minute before a machine when the hatch is coming off.

Deseronto, 10:30 a.m.
Deseronto, 11:00 a.m.
Deseronto, 11:30 a.m.
Deseronto, 12:00 p.m.

Children under 12, half fare. The street railway carries passengers to and from the college for 10 cents each way.

Respectfully request you to regular train within the time limit. Tickets from all stations will be valid to return on any regular train up to and including June 16th.

The travelling agent of the G. T. R. will accompany the excursion in order that everything may be done to ensure the comfort and convenience of the passengers.

The remarkably low rates above quoted should cause this excursion to be liberally patronized and this opportunity of visiting Ontario's Farmers' College and inspecting the experimental work of the Institute on this should not be overlooked by those interested in agricultural culture.

Excursions will be carried over B. O. R. on station Tuesday and Wednesday in September 19th and 20th, and return up to June 19th, at single fare.

CHAPTER I.

"THE STORM AND THE TRAVELLERS."

"Was night, and the spirit of the storm had spread its wild wings over the earth. Dark, ominous clouds were rolling over the heavens—the rain fell in torrents, as if the flood gates of heaven had opened for a second deluge. The cold, raw wind came sweeping chillingly along, driving the rain in maddening eddies against the windows of a carriage that drove as rapidly as the fiercest storm wind could admit.

The carriage windows were shut down tightly—not a single ray of light came from the interior, and yet it was lighted up. A lamp suspended from the top illuminated it, and the fall upon its inmates—three in number.

The eldest of these was a man apparently about fifty years of age, of a stern, rugged face, and a voice that spoke the gentleman. His iron-gray hair was brushed back from a lofty, massive brow, and a pair of keen, dark eyes flashed beneath, while the thick, bushy eyebrows, meeting across the strong Roman nose, gave him a reputation of severity and sternness. His features, taken separately, were decidedly good; but there was an air of severity and respect—rather than of kindness and ease, that came from the close lips, and cruel, crafty cunning in his eyes, that would have instantly repelled any thing like confidence.

His hat was slung down over his face, and he wore a long cloak, that covered him from head to foot. He was evidently of superior rank—a man to be feared and respected—but not loved.

The second was a young girl, bright, blooming, and rosy-looking, strongly contrasted with the dark, stern man. Her face was one of those pleasant, cheery ones, that seemed formed only for smiles; but there was a cloud hanging over it now, and she was looking down at her feet, and her eyes were cast upon the third and last occupant of the carriage.

This was evidently a woman, but muffled in such a manner that no feature was visible. Her head was sunk low on her breast; and her hands, small, white, and lady-like, lay listlessly in her lap. Her dress, which could be seen for the large mantle in which it was enveloped, was rich; and she was an air of grace and refinement about her, that at once bespoke the lady.

All was silent. The cold, stern features of the man at times twitched convulsively, as if he were struggling with a painful thought; and the eyes of the young girl, who was evidently an upper servant, would linger with a look of anxious trouble on the muffled figure, but neither spoke.

Meantime the storm was every moment increasing. Wilder and wilder came the fierce rain, and the wind drove the rain furiously against the coach. Darker and darker it grew until all without was wrapped in a mantle of pitchy blackness, and the darkness drifted the huge storm clouds over the face of the heavens, until all above and below lay enveloped in the same shroud of intense gloom.

Still on through the storm went the carriage. Over the rough roads, where the creaking sign-boards and shutters rattled wildly in the wind, where people, comfortably snug in their homes, wonder as the coach flew by—wondering where it could be going that dread night, until it came to a sudden stop, and the carriage was left in the middle, and the wide, open country lay before them still on—on they went, and every moment the storm increased.

Suddenly there came a flash, as if the whole heavens were one vast sheet of flame, followed by a crash so stunning, so terrible, that it seemed as if the earth were cracking under the weight of the young girl sprang to her feet with a wild shriek. At the same moment the carriage stopped, and the head of the driver was protruded through the window.

"My lord," said, addressing the gentleman, "it is impossible for me to go any further to-night. The storm is right before us; and it will be dangerous for us to venture."

"Drive on!" said the gentleman, sternly. "Drive on!"

The man closed the window, and whipped up his horses for another effort. For a few moments they sped merrily on, then came a second blast of lightning, blinding and stunning, followed by a peal so tremendous, that it seemed to shake the very foundation of the earth. The horses stood for a moment, stock still, then they started forward and plunged so furiously, that it required all the driver's strength to hold them in. At last the great coach stopped. The man opened the window once more.

"We can go no further to-night, my lord," he said resolutely; "the horses are wild and almost unmanageable. We must alight, and seek for some place of shelter until the storm is over."

"Shelter?" repeated the gentleman, "what shelter can we find here on the moor?"

"I do not know, sir; but may be—"

"Hail! I have it now!" exclaimed his lordship, "the old moor house, as you call it, must be somewhere near this; is it not?"

"Yes, my lord, within a few yards. But you will never think of going there, sir, surely, in such a storm, in a tone of dismay.

"And why not, sir?" demanded his lordship, sternly. "You say we cannot move on any further, and we must remain here exposed to the storm all night?"

"I do not know, my lord," said the driver, perplexed and anxious. "I have you! I will attend to the horses, and I will go on foot and see if I can find a better place than the carriage and was lost in the driving down.

"Will be dreadful to stay this wild night in the old moor house, and the earl's determined to stay, I can see that plainly, but I will be damned if I do!"

"Oh! I don't know!" replied the girl, wringing her hands in distress; "it is a dreadful place to stay, I know, but we cannot remain here. Lord preserve us! what lightning! Oh! my poor, dear young lady!" said the girl, turning to the daughter of the nobleman, who lay in the corner of the coach, "how is she to stay in that old haunted place! Surely the evil spirit will come near her, and she will be killed!"

"Good, so patient, and so sorrowful, Oh, John! I would not be the Earl of Danmore this night for all the wealth he has, and I would not have him go to yet have to render for his cruelty to poor Miss Alice!"

"Yes, and now, Lord Arndale, then, now I'll tell you, my dear, if he was my father, as he is Lord Arndale, I would just go and marry Miss Alice, and I would not have him go to yet have to render for his cruelty to poor Miss Alice!"

"John!" said the earl, in his cold, harsh voice, "come down and get your horses to the moor house. You can easily find a place for them there; John, I will carry your mistress; you can follow and protect her. Be careful, the moor is dangerous!"

He raised, as he spoke, the muffled figure in his arms as easily as he would a child, and he was followed by the wet man, closely followed by John.

"This is the place," said the earl, at last, in such a manner that no feature was visible. Her head was sunk low on her breast; and her hands, small, white, and lady-like, lay listlessly in her lap. Her dress, which could be seen for the large mantle in which it was enveloped, was rich; and she was an air of grace and refinement about her, that at once bespoke the lady.

The storm, meanwhile, seemed still increasing. The lightning glared, the thunder crashed, the rain fell in torrents, and the wind howled in such a manner that it seemed as if the world were being torn to pieces. The earl, however, was not deterred. He turned to the driver and said, "Drive on!"

"But, my lord, it could not be imagined," said the driver, "that you would go on in such a storm. You are a nobleman, and you should not expose yourself to such dangers. I will not drive you on any further."

THE BEST UP-TO-DATE SHIRT MADE

The King Shirt

YOU ASK WHY?

- 1st—Because the front won't break on push up.
- 2nd—The braces passing under the front don't drag or break it.
- 3rd—Perspiration cannot touch the front.
- 4th—The collar button at the back of the collar band being covered, prevents the irritation and chafing of the neck which the old style of shirt does.
- 5th—The attachment at back to keep the shirt in place.
- 6th—Solid comfort in wearing it.
- 7th—Saves Laundry.
- 8th—Perfect fitting.
- 9th—Unexcelled for full dress.
- 10th—Once worn always worn.
- 11th—The fat man's necessity.
- 12th—The thin man's luxury.

BY-LAW NO. --

Of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto to authorize the issue of debentures for $7,500.00 for the purpose of purchasing additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional Water-Mains, Hydrants and connections.

WHEREAS it is necessary to the proper adjustment of the Fire Insurance rates within the Town of Deseronto and for the safety of the Town and convenience of the citizens to purchase additional fire preventive outfit and privileges, including additional water-mains, hydrants and connections.

AND WHEREAS the Council of the Corporation of the said Town of Deseronto for the purpose aforesaid to issue debentures of the said Town to the amount of $7,500.00 which is to be created by this by-law and is to be payable in twenty years from the time of the issue of the said debentures.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient to issue the said debentures payable annually for the interest on the same shown in the Schedule "A" to this by-law so that the annual instalments of principal and interest payable in respect of the said debentures during the said period of twenty years shall be as nearly as possible equal.

AND WHEREAS the total amount required by the Municipal Act to be raised annually by special rate for paying the said debt and interest secured by the said debentures is $852.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is $912,235.00.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the existing debenture debt of the said Corporation of the Town of Deseronto is $89,521.00 and no part of the said debt, either principal or interest, is now due or in arrears.

Therefore, the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Deseronto enacts as follows:

1. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality to borrow the said sum of $7,500.00 for the purposes aforesaid and to issue twenty debentures of the said Municipality for the respective amounts and payable on the dates shown on Schedule "A" hereto, the said amounts being arrived at by dividing the instalments of the principal of the said debt in such a manner that the aggregate amount payable for principal and interest in each of the said years following the date of this by-law shall be as nearly as possible equal and the said interest being computed at 4 per cent per annum.

2. It shall be lawful for the Mayor or other head of the said Municipality and he is hereby authorized and instructed to sign and issue the said debentures hereby authorized to be issued.

THE LESSER LIGHT.

The day is dead.
He walked the earth in glory and in pride
And lived in splendour yet, like a king.
Master, ruler in his empire, he died.
But now a ghost!
No shadowy phantasm in the quiet veins.
No ghostly laughter - and, dropped in white,
He steals a secret to the earth again.

A REVENGE PLOT THAT FAILED.

"Harry, dear, don't go."
"I must, Ciss. Eugene can't be cheerful." I answered bitterly. "After all, dearest girl, it will be only for a few months."
"Yes, I'm afraid, Harry, from what father says."
"Well, since he has found me this work I mustn't shrink it. Goodbye, my own girl."

What misery does poverty entail on loving hearts! Cicely Fleming and I had loved one another for years - ever since, indeed, we were children together. I had spent the few hundred my father left me in completing my engineering education in Germany. Then I came home, confident of finding work. But nothing came my way in spite of every endeavor. At last Mr. Fleming's interest procured me a place as assistant engineer in building a new light-house on the dangerous island of Skrya, off the west coast of Ireland.

I parted with Ciss on a Tuesday. Friday morning found me on the small sailing craft which was the only means of communication between Skrya and the mainland. Soon we landed, and I waded ashore and walked up the steep path to the top of the cliff.

As I reached the summit a man met me, and, holding out his hand, said: "Good morning! You're Mr. Brydon, I suppose? I'm Callan!"
He was not so ill looking - at least as far as features went. It was not till after that I discovered the peculiar repulsion he inspired me with was due to his eyes. These were extraordinarily dark and piercing, but across the iris of one was a remarkable pale yellow mark which, combined with a very slight smile, gave him an absolutely uncanny appearance.

Next day I was up betimes, boiled my big kettle, made my coffee and was out on the reef before Callan was visible. The men were already at work. I spoke to them, but either they could not or would not talk. Presently Callan came out, scrambling along the reef. What a burly brute he looked in the clear morning sunlight! He spoke to the men with extraordinary roughness. They evidently feared him, and I soon saw, hated him too.

This puzzled me till I knew him better. But a very few days opened my eyes. If ever there lived a man without one grain of pity in his composition, it was Eugene Callan. He seemed to take an absolute delight in cruelty - cruelty to his sake. There was a boy called Barney McKewen who acted as servant to Callan. The way Callan bullied that unfortunate boy was appalling. I wondered how the others could see such things happening.

A few weeks later we had a storm which stopped all work.
I sat in my hut reading most of the day and listening to the gusts that roared at times like thunder. Once or twice I fancied a shriller sound mingled with the gale.
Late in the afternoon it lulled a little, and suddenly there came, distinct and clear to my ears, a scream of pain I sprang up and listened. Again and again the cry sounded out. It was from Callan's hut it came.

I sprang up, rushed across and flung open the door. The sight that met my eyes made me blaze with anger. Stripped to the waist and writhing with pain, the wretched McKewen was tied to the head of Callan's bed, while over him stood the big black bully, lashing him with a rope end.

"What's this for?" I cried.
Callan turned his crooked gaze on me. "To teach the young hound obedience!" His voice grated with rage at the interruption. "And what business is it of yours, Mr. Pry?"

I fancied for an instant he was going for me. But I was much too angry to think of consequences.

"You're an infernal bully!" I shouted. "And if you don't stop it I can't make you, but I'll soon let our employers know."

The bully was a coward - that I knew. But he could have killed me with one hand. So my relief was considerable when he suddenly turned down the rope's end. I untied McKewen, and, pushing him before me, left the hut.

But a hissing whisper followed me. "All right, young man, your turn now. But you'll pay for it!"

One day letters came across from the mainland - one from Ciss and one in an unknown hand.

Ciss' letter, of course, I read first. Then I tore open the other and skimmed it through.

Only by slow degrees did I realize its import. My mother's uncle, old Sir Bernard Child, had died and left me everything. Why, I had never seen him, hardly imagined that he was aware of my existence. I walked out, and still in a dazed condition, called McKewen to pull me across to the mainland. I hurried to the village postoffice and sent off a wire. To ward against the reply came, assuring me my news was correct in every detail. I looked up the first train from Callan in the morning, arranged about a car to take me there, and was soon rowing back to Skrya.

The sun had long set behind the little cove, and it was quite dark when we clambered up the narrow rock path. Reaching the top, I glanced across to the piers and thought I saw the gleam of a light flash under the door of my abode. "It was about to hurry on when the boy laid a hand on my sleeve."

Presently there was a scratching from within. A man flung up the door, who had lighted it was crouched on the floor, his body between us and the light. He was unwinding a piece of very fine wire or strong thread and carefully stringing it across the floor from the bed to the stove. He passed it round a leg of the stove and then back again, securing it finally with infinite caution to a little shiny metal tube which protruded from the top of a small parcel. This parcel was standing well hidden under one of the chairs at the foot of the bed. As the man turned I saw his profile plainly. It was Callan.

An instant's thought and my engineering training made plain to me the whole infernal plot. The parcel was gun cotton, the tube behind it a thin glass receptacle. Above this was a leaden bullet, kept in place by a movable pin. The string so carefully wound across the floor was attached to the free end of the pin. A touch of careless foot on the string, the pin would pull out, the bullet fall, the glass shiver and the acid do its deadly work on the explosive below.

I had forgotten for the time all about the boy. Suddenly, in a moment of mad fury - for he, too, had understood the plot - he sprang up and beat with his fists upon the pane. Callan raised himself quickly, but carefully, not forgetting the deadly string. What he did forget was how near he was to the stove. As in a dream I saw his coat catch against it. It swung and the big kettle overbalanced. For an instant it seemed to hang in the air. I strove to call out. It was too late. Smash, it fell right on the string. The whole world turned crimson and burst into a great glare of flame. Something struck me in the chest and drove me backward.

"Fraise the saints, his eyes are open, doctor!"

"Yes, he'll do now," said another voice, in a rich brogue.

I went to sleep again.

When I awoke it was bright daylight. I was in Callan's hut, on his cot.

I felt sore and bruised all over, and at first could not remember what had happened.

Then it came to dawn on me. "What's this?" I began.

"Sh!" came in the same soft brogue as before. "Don't talk! Callan won't be bothering you any more. McKewen's not much the worse, barring his hair. And there's nothing broken in yerelf."

"How soon I should be able to travel?" The doctor checked me again.

"In a week," he said, "if you'll be still."

I did, and tomorrow I am starting. Cicely will meet me at Holyhead. - Chicago Journal.

Thackeray's Tenderness.
The following letter was written in 1838 by Thackeray to his wife. Surely a more tender message, more truly inscribed with love and religion, was never framed.

"Here have we been two years married and not a single unhappy day. Oh, I do bless God for all this happiness which he has given me! It is so great that I almost tremble for the future, except that I hardly hope for what man is certain about his own weakness and wickedness! Our love is strong enough to withstand any pressure from without, and as it is a gift greater than any fortune, is likewise one superior to poverty or sickness or any other worldly evil with which Providence may visit us. Let us pray, as I trust there is no harm, that none of these may come upon us, as the best and wisest in the world prayed that he might not be led into temptation."

And I think I hardly hope for what man is certain about his own weakness and wickedness! Our love is strong enough to withstand any pressure from without, and as it is a gift greater than any fortune, is likewise one superior to poverty or sickness or any other worldly evil with which Providence may visit us. Let us pray, as I trust there is no harm, that none of these may come upon us, as the best and wisest in the world prayed that he might not be led into temptation."

THOUSANDS OF FARMERS

IT PAYS TO BUY THE BEST.

Want GOOD Binder Twine, and are willing to pay a fair price for it? Sensible farmers know GOOD twine is the cheapest; and poor twine is dear at any price. It is not what you pay, but what you get, that constitutes a bargain. "Plymouth" make and sell GOOD twine as low as GOOD twine can be sold. "Plymouth" does not make or sell POOR twine at any price.

NO OTHER TWINE IS "JUST AS GOOD" AS PLYMOUTH.

If your dealer does not handle our Twine, write Plymouth Binder Twine Agency, 54 Bay Street, Toronto.

Voted Federation.

Sydney, N.S.W., June 21.—The Australian colonies voted yesterday on the federation question. The struggle was most acute in New South Wales. Incomplete returns in this colony up to the present show 100,000 votes in favor of federation and 75,000 against it.

Sydney Votes for It.

Sydney, N.S.W., June 21.—The referendum on the federation question has resulted in 11,045 votes in favor, as against 10,551 opposed, in the city of Sydney. In the suburbs the voting was 24,468 in favor and 25,048 opposed, and in the country districts the returns, now practically complete, show 65,697 for federation, as against 44,088 opposed. The result has been received here with great enthusiasm, and the federation leaders are applauded and energized on all hands.

THIS LOOKS LIKE TROUBLE.

 London, June 21.—The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail says: The Natal Volunteers have been officially ordered to hold themselves in readiness for active service.

Vladimir's Press Reception.

St. Petersburg, June 21.—Grand Duke Vladimir, who was received by Finland to inspect the troops there, was received unfavorably, even with hostility. Popular irritation in Finland over the Government's scheme to Russify the province is daily becoming more pronounced.

British Colonies Still in It.

Berlin, June 21.—The committee on the commercial provision between Germany and England has rejected the Agreement and is ready to take the measure. These provided that the English colonies be exempted from the benefits of the provision.

GOOD NEWS comes from those who take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a rash, dyspepsia and rheumatism. Reports agree that HOOD'S CURES

They Will Raise $100,000.
 Hamilton, June 21.—The General Assembly decided yesterday to celebrate the end of the century by raising $100,000. The report of the committee appointed to consider the centenary fund project was in favor of the plan, and the report was adopted. A large and influential committee was appointed to superintend the raising of the fund, and the report was adopted. The salary will be $3,000 or $5,000 a year.
 One of the most interesting episodes last night when it was learned that one of the representatives to the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto, Rev. H. B. Owen, F.R.S.E., and pastor in charge of St. Philip's, Unionville, had died suddenly. After returning from a walk to the residence of Mr. Harry Hutchinson, 317 Sherbourne street, he suddenly fell and expired. The deceased clergyman formerly resided in Markham, and a few years ago removed to Unionville.

His Death Instantaneous.
 Toronto, June 21.—A horrible accident, in which John Nicholl was electrocuted, occurred yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, near the corner of Conduit street, Ontario Junction, and Dundas street, in the city. The accident was caused by the water sprinkler running off the track at this point, and the trolley happened in trying to get it on to the track again. John Gilroy, John Nicholl and J. H. Thompson made a circuit with a big iron lever, and as the trolley had not been disconnected from the wire, the electric current of full strength passed along the lever held by the three men. Nicholl was in the middle, and never moved again. The other two had their hands burned and were thrown to the ground and stunned by the shock. An inquest will be held. Deceased was 37 years of age, and leaves a wife and family.

Lightning Franks.
 Kingston, Ont., June 21.—Lightning yesterday morning struck the belfry of St. Luke's Church, partly destroying it, and a portion of the interior wall. The dwelling of Charles Parks, west of the city, was also struck and set on fire, but the downpour of rain extinguished the flames.
 Edward McCabe, a farmer residing a few miles from the city, while walking through his dining room, suffered from an electric shock. He was knocked down and rendered unconscious.

Scrofula.

Another permanent cure by S.B.B. after two doctors failed.

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that, next to cancer, scrofula is one of the hardest diseases to cure.

Yet Burdock Blood Bitters applied externally to the parts affected and taken internally cured Rev. Wm. Stout, of Kirkton, Ont., permanently, after many prominent physicians failed; Cured Mrs. W. Bennett, of Creswell's Corners, Ont., permanently, when everyone thought she would die. Now Mr. H. H. Forest, Windsor Mills, P.Q., states his case as follows:

"After having used Burdock Blood Bitters for scrofula in the blood, I feel my duty to make known the results. I was treated by two skilled physicians, but they failed to cure me. I had numerous sores on my hands and legs which I could get nothing to heal until I tried S.B.B. This remedy healed them completely and permanently, leaving the skin and flesh sound and whole."

Religious and Irreligious Religion.

Fishes are supposed to have no religion. Probably they are greatly mistaken in that as well as in other respects. St. Anthony, as you know, used to preach to them and make their eyes glitter and their hearts beat by his eloquence. A Jewish story is told. I cannot, unfortunately, lay my hands on the passage just now—of a fish which leaves the sea on Saturday and does not return until Sunday, so as to be able to keep the Sabbath.

Other fishes, unlike their terrestrial brethren, do not observe the sabbatical day. The Koran gives a story of some very naughty fishes in David's time. Knowing that the Israelites were forbidden to catch fish on the Sabbath, the wicked creatures came out of the Red sea in great numbers, and kept in sight of the people all through the day in order to tempt them. On the approach of night they returned to the sea again. In a fatal moment some of the Israelites yielded to the piscine blandishments, caught several of them and had them for dinner. Whereupon David cursed the Sabbath breakers and God, to show his displeasure, changed them into apes and pigs. For three days they roared in this unpleasant condition, when a violent storm arose and swept them into the sea.

The fish which brought the tribute money to our Lord is supposed to have been a badcock, which had stayed into the lake of Genesareth. There are several legends which tell of miraculous fish in fishes—Paris Messenger.

A happy introduction.

An Englishman who is an enthusiastic Alpine climber came in one night to carry a friend off to a lecture which the veteran mountaineer was to give at Westminster on his pet theme, "Twenty Thousand Feet Above the Sea." The friend could not go, for he was otherwise engaged, but Whymer's name reminded him of a story of Sir James Linton, the late president of the Royal Institution of Painters in Water Colors. He had to introduce the well known artist E. M. Wimperis to the Alpine, and he did it in the following fashion: "I want to make two distinguished men known to each other. This is the Mr. Whymer, the other Mr. Wimperis." For an impromptu this is not bad.

Every person suffering from general debility should take Miller's Compound from Pills.

LOVE SONG.

If all the laurel wreaths of fame
Were used for me and my tribe lead,
What were they worth unless you came
To see your lover's faithful head.
If all the laurel wreaths of fame
Were used for me and my tribe lead,
What were they worth unless you came
To see your lover's faithful head.

"WANT TO GO HOME."

Under the shade of a tree hung a hammock; in the hammock a man lay, and the bird raised its head and croaked.

"I want to go home! I want to go home!"

"That parrot went to belong to a fellow that took sick of typhoid and went to the hospital," said a soldier standing by.

"He took the bird with him. Now and then the bird raised its head and croaked."

"The chap was horribly homesick, and he was always moaning: 'I want to go home! I want to go home!'" avenging into columns of four and passed into review.

The strange place for a review of American troops. The town of Manzanillo lay in front with its red tiled and thatched roofs, and in the distance was the bay. Back of the troops were the low barracks and the distant block-houses.

The band struck up "Dixie" and the regiment wheeled past, the music erect and solidly and every movement executed with as much precision as if it was marching down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington. Instead of the marching on the side of a hill in a far place that a great many people in the United States didn't even know was the map.

"Oh, wish I was in the land of cotton!" played the band as the regiment came marching by.

A convalescent soldier leaning on his cane near a party drew in his breath with a sharp, whistling sound.

"I wish to God I was!" he murmured.

Then he stiffened up and took off his hat, for the colors were passing.

The regiment counter-marched at the music of the band and disappeared through the gates.

"I wish I was in the land of cotton!" played the band as the regiment came marching by.

Older times are not forgotten. Look away, look away, look away to Dixie!

The music of the band died away. The Americans walked silently down the hill. The convalescent soldier joined them.

"What did you think of it," he asked.

"Fine," said a soldier. "It was the best I ever saw. I have seen the colors in the States, but not like this."

A Dashing Army.

The hero clerk told the following story: Charles L. Davis, the actor, otherwise known as "Alvin Jolin," in New Orleans, when a man from Chicago stopped in front of him and looked at his head in search of an acquaintance that he supposed was in the hotel lobby Davis, mistaking the Chicago man's purpose, remarked: "Ah! I see you admire my diamond. This is a fine stone on his shirt button—'cost me $3,000. These'—showing his cuff buttons—'cost me $2,500 each, and my wife has a trunkful of 'em in our room.'"

The Chicago man did not say much, but that evening, by arrangement with the head waiter, Davis was placed at supper alone at a table where there were several vacant chairs. Presently several men, all commercial travelers, entered the dining room, and each one had a large cut glass fruit dish fastened on his breast, while glass trays hung from their waists.

Soberly marching to Davis' table, the seven men took the vacant seats, and the Chicago man entertained the actor with: "Ah, I see you admire my diamond. This is a fine stone on his shirt button—'cost me $3,000. These'—showing his cuff buttons—'cost me $2,500 each, and my wife has a trunkful of 'em in our room.'"

Big Fee For Doctors.

Sixty thousand dollars and a pension of $2,000 a year was paid to Dr. Thomas Dimsdale, the Hertfordshire physician who, in 1872, was summoned to St. Petersburg to vaccinate the Emperor Catherine II. Dr. Dimsdale, who had obtained a great reputation for extraordinary skill in the operation for lithotomy, received a lac of roubles (then equivalent to $60,000) from each of six Indian rajahs for the single operation.

The late czar of Russia paid a fee of $75,000 to Professor Zacherine of Moscow for two days' attendance. A certain Dr. Gale of Bristol, who was hired for curing a gentleman of a seriously diseased knee by some electric treatment received a check for $50,000. Dr. Gale Yonville, the famous oculist, reported to the son of the shah of Persia, received $35,000 in fees during the three months of his residence in Tehran, while all his expenses of traveling and maintaining his household were paid.

Sir William Jenner received for four weeks' attendance at Sandringham during the illness of the Prince of Wales a bounty and a fee of $60,000, while the Montagu family, who reported to have received twice that amount for attending the Emperor Frederick. His royal highness the nawab of Rampur, India, a few years since paid an English doctor $50,000 for an occasional attendance in an ordinary attack of rheumatism.

Good Friday in England. Many quaint and grotesque observances of Good Friday are prevalent in various localities. In Brighton the custom of skipping the rope on that day led to the use of the term "Long Rope days," six or eight miles, with a single rope, was carried out one time. In the Somerset villages men and boys play marbles at St. Bartholomew's church, London. 93 old women appear and before a crowd of curious onlookers bend their stiffened, aged knees to pick up 91 eggs.

This latter custom had its origin before the great fire, when an eccentric woman left her property to have 91, sixpence laid upon her grave-stone in St. Bartholomew's church, which was afterwards picked up by aged widows.

At the Church of All Hallows the youngest boys of the Blue Coat school are enabled by the will of Peter Symonds, dated 1587, to divide 600 new pennies and 60 packets of tallow among the children.

In London and all over England the eating of "hot cross buns" is the special feature of the day. The original home of this English custom is said to be in Winton, near Dorchester, Dorsetshire. There, wherever the old Roman roads crossed, stood the altar of Diana of the Crossways, to whom the Romans offered their sacred cakes.

The fascination of gold digging. Once you have seen a "color" in the bottom of a pan with the black sand following it around like a faithful servant, you can never again be deceived by the false glint of any other particle. You would see it if it lay anywhere between Colchester and Broadway or if it were no larger than a pinhead at the bottom of a trout pool.

For the moment the yellow pile makes you feel like seeking a claim of your own and setting out to find it for yourself. But when you look at the miry path along the base of the mountain by the creek and think of following it with a pack on your back until it is no more and a wilderness begins, you are content to stay where you are.

Consider a likely place and thawing through 80 feet of earth at the rate of a foot a day in the haphazard possibility of finding "pay dirt," you conclude the poetry of the thing can be better appreciated by gitting on some one else's dump. —Frederick Palmer in Scribner's.

Laughs Better Than Tears.

I bless all the apostolic college of humorists. The man that makes me laugh is my benefactor. I do not thank anybody to make me cry. I can do that without any assistance. We all cry enough and have enough to cry about. God bless all skillful jesters, all raconteurs, all propounders of ingenious conundrums, all those who merrily surprise us with unusual juxtapositions of words, all those who have the wit to make the most of earthly existence, which is sometimes stale, effervescent and bubble. They placate animosities. They foster longevity. They slay follies and absurdities which all the sermons of all the pulpit cannot reach. —E. De Witt Taft.

Welcome Punishment to Bobby.

A little boy went to church with his mother. The service was somewhat long and after a time he became bored to the child. Consequently he giggled. His mother reproved him several times. At last she leaned toward him. "Bobby," she whispered, "if you don't hush I'll never bring you to church again." A gleam of hope dawned in Bobby's weary eyes. "Mamma," he said eagerly, "how bad will I have to be?" —Exchange.

Forest Reservations.

The 80 forest reservations of the United States cover an area of 40,000,000 acres in 13 states and territories. Seven are in the state of California, the largest of which, the Sierra forest reserve, includes 4,000,000 acres. Within this area 85 per cent is estimated to be 11,000,000,000 feet board measure of timber on public land have been destroyed by forest fires.

Origin of "Mrs. Partington."

Miss Shillaber, a daughter of the famous "Mrs. Partington," moping back the Atlantic with a broom, and her name just then occurring to him he christened a rise in breadstuffs thus: "Mrs. Partington" says the price of flour makes no difference to her, as she always puts the same for half a dollar's worth.

This occurred in 1847, on the day he became a reporter for the Boston Post. It was copied in all the newspapers in the country and made him famous. In reception surprised and pleased him, and he thereafter made glibly sayings of the kind upon all topics of the day, soon introducing "like," and a brief time they became national catchwords.

Stop It! Stop It!

Don't imagine for a minute that a cough means nothing. Think of the number of people who in their graves to-day had coughed at one time with Shiloh's Consumption Cure, which all druggists sell at 25 cts. per bottle, 50 cts. per bottle, 1 dollar per bottle. It is safe to help you, your money will be refunded.

An Added Benefit.

I was taking my dinner one day at a mountain farmhouse on the headwaters of the Cumberland river, and the lady of the house, who had four children playing around the front of the establishment, was inclined to explain her hard luck in having so much work to do. "I run this here whole farm," she said in a tone which indicated that she was ready to resign.

"How many acres have you?" I inquired.

"A hundred and forty—20 in wheat, 60 in corn, 10 in meadow, an pasture, on the balance scatter in woods."

"Got any stock?"

"Ten head of cattle, two cows, six hogs an work critters for the place. I also run the whole farm."

"Indeed! I do—every side an hair av it," she sighed.

"Don't you hire some help?"

"In course, but 'tain't hired help that takes the load off a body. There was philosophy in that statement, and I panted a minute."

Saturday's Election.

The fire by-law was defeated by a vote of 32 to 14 against. The town now has a lot of fire trucks and ladders wagon and other apparatus delivered or to be delivered and no doubt suitable to keep them.
The vote on the by-law was as follows:

	For	Against
East Ward	11	14
Centre Ward	11	14
West Ward	11	14
Subst. No. 1	11	14
Subst. No. 2	11	14

Majority against 32.
Robert Geddis defeated W. G. Edgar in the race for the seat in the Common Council left vacant by the resignation of James Stokes. The vote that declared Mr. Geddis the choice of the people was as follows:

	Geddis	Edgar
East Ward	22	41
Centre Ward	22	41
West Ward	22	41
Subst. No. 1	22	41
Subst. No. 2	22	41

Majority for Geddis, 22.
The votes cast were small in number, only 213 being cast for councillor, while the fate of the by-law was decided by a majority of 32 in a total vote of 130.

Rochester on the Fourth.

For the first time in its history the Forty-eighth Highlanders of Toronto, the most famous military organization in America, is to march upon the soil of the County of Deseronto, Ontario, on the Fourth of July and commemorate the annual victory of Santiago de Cuba. Driven by the thinking and the Scotch Highlanders the Toronto regiment will have little difficulty in attracting attention in the streets of Deseronto. Accompanying the regiment will be the famous Scotch Grenadier band, a superb organization of 50 musicians who have for years brought fame to Toronto and organization of superior merit and musical attainments.
In addition to the band, the regiment brings its five Highland pipers, who play the stirring airs dear to every Scotchman's heart, and a martial band of 12 pipers. The Highlanders themselves are well worn, the trip of many miles to Rochester on the great day. They form without doubt the greatest military organization on the continent, not even excepting the Seventh regiment of New York.

It is Easily Done.

When one stops to consider the vast amount of labor necessary to get in a crop of hay, and also stops to reckon the short time in which the crop must be put under cover, the fact strikes one forcibly that the best way to do it is to employ the best modern machinery available. No use looking with longing eyes at the rusty, bucking, breaking, lunge, the hay behind the big door in the barn; no use regretting the vanishing of the old-time mower, which required so much horse-power to pull it through a thin crop of timothy, which it cut in a haphazard fashion and left the hay scattered about a ten-acre lot as though a cyclone had been toying with it. The proper method is to acquire a Herring Big 3 mower and have your crop gathered in modern style. The gearing of this machine is so simple that it never, or hardly ever, gets out of kilter; there are but four wheels, and each part works with its own precision and away regularly that loss motion or waste of power is the impossibility. The height of the driving wheels is such as to make the machine run easily. Not much weight for the horses to drag through the roughest meadows in a Canadian farm. It cuts the hay off in such a neat and clean manner that the fortunate possessor of a Herring Big 3 is envied by his neighbors. Then again, it is made in Canada by John Herring & Son, of Kenosha, Wis. All parts are interchangeable, and in case of a breakage or occurrence with a Big 3 the broken part can be secured in short order. Write for particulars. Better still, have one sent you in time to get in this season's hay.

Provincial Appointments.

Patrick K. Haplin has been appointed Justice Magistrate of Prescott, with-out salary, in place of R. McTavish, resigned. J. G. Johnston, of Deseronto, succeeds E. J. Edwards as clerk of the Seventh Division Court of the County of Hastings. E. A. Wickware, of Clorone, County of Lennox and Addington, has been constituted a bailiff in place of Moses Lessard, jr.

The Crop Report.

The Toronto Globe summarizes the reports received from correspondents to the condition of crops. Among others it has this to say about the crops in Hastings and Prince Edward counties:

Belleville—Hay will be a good crop although much clover was winter-killed. Pasture is abundant. Fall wheat suffered much from frost but what remains will be above the average. Rye promises well. Spring wheat, barley, oats and peas promise well. Apples will be a small crop; many orchards having suffered much from caterpillars. Other fruits promise well.

Stirling—The crops in this section are looking well, with the exception of fall wheat, which is a failure in most sections. It will surely be a large crop as last year, but it is of a better quality. Oats and barley indicate a good crop, but rye is not up to the average. The root crops will be excellent.

Tweed—Fall wheat in this section is about as follows: Gray is below the average. Other grains bid fair to be above the average. The root crop never looked better.

Trenton—The crops in this vicinity are looking fine. Hay will be above an average crop. Grain, fruit and root crops all promise well.
Pictou—As far as crops are concerned, what remains will be judged at present the crops in Prince Edward will be about the average. Hay is not as big a crop as was anticipated earlier in the season, but is fair. Peas, barley, oats and fall wheat are about the average, while small fruits are plentiful.

A Knotty Problem.

No branch of work has been so completely revolutionized as the domestic work of "cooking."
For years our dear women have been suffering and vainly demanding something better than the cumbersome and antiquated coal and wood stove. At last their dreams were realized. The "Quick Meal" has transformed the drudgery of kitchen work into a pleasant pastime.
What is a "Quick Meal" Stove?
A stove that is always ready? A stove that makes no smoke, smell or ashes? A safe stove? An economical stove? A clean stove? A stove that requires no skill to operate? It is.
The "Quick Meal" Stove is a solid, but light, pretty contrivance fed with gas instead of coal or wood, and is especially invented for ladies who want to do their cooking comfortably in summer-time in a cool kitchen.
And then—what we consider the economy over the old-fashioned coal stove. The "Quick Meal" has one, two, three, four or five burners, according to the size needed and selected. Either one or all of the burners of burners may be used at one time. Three meals a day can be cooked for a family of six persons on a single burner. "Quick Meal" and ironing done besides, and if used economically, the gas bill will be no small that one who uses such a contrivance was not invented and put into general use many long years ago. Jas. J. Smith, manager of the Deseronto branch, will install one in your house at a low cost.

Royal Military College.

A return brought down in the House of Commons shows the expenditure of the Royal Military College, Kingston, since its foundation in 1875, as follows: 1875, $10,418; 1877, $20,559; 1878, $30,187; 1879, $41,422; 1880, $28,070; 1881, $58,000; 1882, $53,077; 1883, $53,077; 1884, $57,030; 1885, $53,531; 1886, $57,127; 1887, $51,542; 1888, $55,411; 1889, $52,226; 1890, $55,077; 1891, $50,248; 1892, $65,019; 1893, $70,581; 1894, $68,122; 1895, $61,538; 1896, $62,102; 1897, $50,010; 1898, $58,251.
The total number of graduates is 231. Of these 87 have Imperial commissions in the army, 11 have commissions in the Canadian permanent corps; 20 are in the civil service; 10 are railway engineers, civil engineers, surveyors and architects in Canada; 35 are in commerce, 10 are in the army, 10 are in other British possessions, 10 are in civil engineers in the United States; 7 are dead, and 21 are unaccounted for.

A Railway Contract Rumor.

A newspaperman, who has been known, on occasion, to attempt a witticism, writes to Printer and Publisher: "Appos of the remarkable success of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Ontario advertising contracts, invalidating them in case of hostile relations, it is rumored that the Canadian Pacific is contemplating the inclusion of a clause in its contracts to the effect that the agreement will not be valid if the company is subjected to death fairly, unfairly or otherwise. The reason of this is said to be that the company has become so accustomed to violent attacks from some newspapers, that it wouldn't feel that it was getting the worth of its money unless a liberal supply of abuse was reasonably guaranteed with the advertisement."

ANOTHER MINE ACCIDENT.

A Shocking Accident in the War Eagle Mine—Drills Struck an Unexploded Charge With Fatal Results.

Roseland, B.C., June 24.—Another terrible accident occurred in the War Eagle mine between 10:25 and 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Four men were killed, two dying instantly and one a few days after being brought to the surface, and one man died in the hospital.

The accident was in consequence of an explosion caused by an overlooked shot in which about two sticks of a little over a pound of powder had been left.

The particulars are as follows: Charles Lee, Mike Griffin, Charles Sturges and Charles Coulson, men of the War Eagle mine, were working in the west drift on the 925-foot level, 100 feet from the shaft, having gone to work at 7 a.m. and Griffin was working one machine and Sturges and Coulson another. About 30 holes had been put in the face of the drift. The cut hole was 16 inches in diameter and was in a position where it could not have held much more than a couple sticks of powder. It is supposed by the miners that the sticks of powder and caused the disaster. The cut hole in question was blasted on Wednesday night, and drilled by the same shift which was at work when the explosion occurred, the hole having been drilled on Tuesday.

Sturges and Lee were found to have been instantly killed and Griffin died while being carried to the hospital. Green reached the hospital alive, but died at 4 p.m. Coulson, who was also taken to the hospital, has a number of bad flesh wounds, especially from the waist down, but is not dangerously injured.

Coverer Jones will hold an inquest today at 3 p.m.

DOMINION STEEL CO.

The Bonds and Common Stock Underwritten by the Dominion Steel Corporation have been underwritten by two or three times over. Four Ugly Beasts.

There are four beasts in the world that can give long odds in the way of ugliness to anything else that lives. One of them is a monkey, a gawsome looking beast called the howler. This is so utterly grotesque a beast that it would scarcely be safe to let a child or nervous person see it. The ugliness is not of an amusing kind, but of an evil sinister nature. The beast has a sort of beard and a countenance unlike anything else in shape and lines. The monkey itself is not particularly scary, but it is so hideous that the natives of its country, South America, say that the most of people here have a terror of it. Even a hungry jaguar would starve in a cage of fakes.

Then there is a tree climbing beast that is as queer a nondescript as one could hope to see. It has a sharp face and long, jointed fingers and is called the aye-aye, from its cry. This looks like one of the most appallingly weird of all those strange beasts one sees in nightmares and cannot get away from but, like the snake, is of a gentle disposition. It lives in South Africa. A full grown aye-aye looks like a blend of jacks, pig and monkey. Then there is the Tasmanian devil of the antipodes, which is as savage as it is ugly, and, as a species of Asiatic ground rat called the band.

A Life Worse Than Death.

It is said that Dr. Tuffier of the Hospital de la Pitié, Paris, succeeded in bringing a man to life temporarily. The man operated upon was Jean Soulie, who had been pronounced dead. Dr. Tuffier, it is alleged, in the presence of a large number of students, took the body, and, after the application of several recognized methods of pouring, the total extinction of life, exposed the man's heart, and, holding the organ in his hand, pressed first one side with the finger and then on the other side with the thumb, and, keeping it up continually, caused an artificial respiration, and after a time there were unmistakable evidences of life. It is said that the man answered one or two questions put to him. It was impossible to maintain this artificial action very long, and the man sank back to his second death.

Foolishly Sensitive.

"Yes, well, the doctor's trade is a very unfortunate way."
"Why, we have a mechanical duck in our stock of novelties that runs by clockwork. The doctor came in the store just as one of our young women wound the thing up, and at the very moment the doctor came opposite it the duck gravely bowed to him and said, 'Quack, quack.' The doctor is so foolishly sensitive."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Easy Plan.

"That young man," said the citizen, pointing to a sharp featured youth across the street, "has made fame both for himself and this native village."
"As to how?" asked the stranger.
"Simply by sending telegrams of congratulation or condolence, as the occasion called for, to prominent persons."—Indianapolis Journal.

A writer in The Electrical Review inclines to the opinion that as the electric motor has replaced the horse car so the perfection of paving will ultimately do away with rails and current altogether and automobile vehicles rule supreme.

On the first indication of Diarrhoea or Dysentery a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Ext. of Wild Strawberry will promptly check the advance of these dangerous diseases.

It has been over 40 years a use and has no equal for the cure of blood complaints of young people. There are many dangerous imitations on the market, but it would be wise to see that the full name, Dr. Fowler's Ext. of Wild Strawberry, is on every bottle you buy.

MARINE.

The tug Bronson, which was burned at Alexandria, Bay, will be a total loss. Bert Hastings, fireman, and James O'Neill, sailor, were drowned while trying to save others.

The steamer Nellie Torment, downward bound from Lake Superior with a cargo of lumber, burned to the water's edge ahead of Point Au Pic on June 28. The fire was discovered in the hold of the vessel, but had attained so much headway in the lumber pile that it was impossible to check it, and the vessel was beached and scuttled on Lime Island. After fighting the fire as long as possible the crew got safely on shore. The cargo of lumber is a total loss and there is probably not enough left of the steamer to be worth saving. The lost boat was owned by G. W. Jackson of Bay City, Mich., and registered 802 tons. She was built in 1891.

It taken the steamer Turonto only one day and a half to make a trip between Toronto, Charlotte and Prescott.

Capt. Joseph Murray, who commanded the tug Bronson, burned Thursday of last week at Alexandria Bay, says there is little hope of recovering the bodies of the two men who were drowned, as the water is over 150 feet deep where they went down.

The stranded steamship Gallia, which has been aground at Stone Island below Sorel since May 14, was successfully floated at nine o'clock Saturday morning. The ship has suffered no damage whatever.

Captain Coleman Hickey, Sr., one of the oldest of the lake masters, died at his home in Cape Vincent on Sunday at the age of ninety years. Captain Hickey was born at Marquette, Wolfe Island, Ont., June 12, 1819, and had spent the whole of his life on the great lakes. He is survived by four sons and three daughters. The old Watertown was the last steamer commanded by the Captain.

Dr. Oroniyatekha's steam yacht Yuleis is in the shipyard undergoing extensive repairs. A cabin is being built on her to take the place of the awning that has done duty heretofore. Repairs on the steamer Reliance are being rushed at the shipyard, a night gang being at work. She has been extensively rebuilt and had new boilers installed. When the repairs are completed she ought to be in ship shape for many years.

The steamer Resolute took her last load of lumber to Oswego this week. She loaded lumber for Buffalo, from whence she goes to Manitowish Island. She will engage in the upper lake traffic for the balance of the season. The Reliance is to take her place on the Deseronto-Oswego route, and is loading her first cargo for that port today.

The steamer Nile went to Morris-town with lumber and on her next trip took lumber to Romid Island.

The steamer Arctic took a cargo of ties to Oswego.

The schooner Mary called at this port and took lumber to Oswego.

The schooner E. L. Wells loaded with lumber and cleared for Fairhaven.

The Bay of Quinte ports were supplied with hunch wood in the usual quantities by sloops.

The steamer Nicholls took pulp wood to Dexter this week.

The Merritt called here with a Belleville excursion on its way to Pictou.

Go to W. Stoddard's for White Duck Pants for Holiday Wear.

Origin of "Fall Mail."
 "Fall Mail" (pronounced pel mel) comes from pale mail, an ancient game supposed to have been played on the present site of Fall Mall by Norman monks, by whom it was introduced into England.

The observant Pepys, in his famous diary, makes mention of it thus: "April 2, 1661. Into St. James' park, where I saw the Duke of York playing at Pelamale, the first time that I saw the sport."—Fall Mail Bulletin.

The Trouble.
 Hicks—Why is it you are so hard on Wellington? He never did you a bad turn or ever spoke ill of you.
 Wicks—I know that, but the fact is the first time I saw Wellington I thought he was somebody out of the ordinary, and I was as polite to him as I know how to be. I never shall be able to forgive him for that mistake.—Boston Transcript.

A Hard Cough.
 "Doctor, I want to know exactly what's the matter with me."
 "My good sir, your ailment is a tendency of the lungs to expel air suddenly and forcibly through the glottis, the effort being accompanied by a runcous and more or less guttural sound."
 "That's what I told the doctor I discharged the other day. He said it was nothing but a cough."—Chicago Tribune.

Remedial Cures.
 "What did Pinner give the bride?"
 "Two ice-creams and a jumping man."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Original Article.

Whether it was Voltaire or some other observing, meditative Frenchman who said, "All Frenchmen are actors, and the worst are usually on the stage," it is particularly interesting for the subject in hand. While we have reason to be sure of the correctness of the final part of the aphorism, we have not time to show why we do not agree with the rest. It is not, as he says, the actor that we are going to describe, although scenes worthy of the Opera Comique are constantly presented there. It is a suicide.

A well dressed gentleman descended the Quai des Tuilleries and, seating himself beside a man who was fishing, lit a cigar. He then offered one to his neighbor and plunged into the river, cigar, cane, silk hat and all. The fisherman, who was quick to recover from his astonishment, plunged after him, but the first struck out and swam away. The other remained in the bank in despair. The former shortly returned and while treading water before his temporary acquaintance, tossed him a handful of goldpieces. At the approach of a number of persons the strange man produced another handful of gold, which he swallowed and, diving under the water, did not reappear. A body was found five hours later, and as there was nothing discovered by which to establish his identity it was taken to the morgue.

A Stenographer's Penit.

Conceding the stenographic prowess of the late Thomas Allen Reed a correspondent sends a curious anecdote. The late shorthand writer was once on professional business in Liverpool and staid in the same hotel as Charles Matthews, the actor. The latter had appeared in "My Awful Dad," and after the performance he strolled into the smoking room. Having heard of Mr. Reed's expertness as a note taker, Matthews challenged the reporter to try to down certain passages from the character of Puff in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "Critic." Reed expressed his willingness to have a try. Matthews, who was one of the best "patter" speakers on the stage, began to gabble the lines with startling rapidity, and the other strained every nerve to follow him. When the test was finished, Reed, whose notes, despite the terrific speed at which he had been writing, were of neat and eligible outline, merely inserted a vowel mark or two and handed them to an assistant who was called into the room, and who mistook the characters with but few mistakes, backward! "I should hardly have thought it possible, Mr. Reed!" was the astonished exclamation. Matthews comment.—London Telegraph.

Time He Was Married.

A recent wedding in a western town was so much interrupted that the friends of the wedded pair found special reason to congratulate them when the ceremony was at last over. All went merrily until the bridegroom was called upon to produce the wedding ring. In vain he felt in his trousers pocket for the indispensable article. Nothing could be found except a hole through which the ring had evidently fallen into the high boot which the young man wore. "Take your boot off," said the parson. The expense and silence were painful.

The organist, at the priest's bidding, struck up a "voluntary."

The young man removed his boot; the ring was found; also a hole in his stocking, and the worthy minister remarked, evidently with more than the delay of the ceremony in mind:

"Young man, it is time you were married."

Proud to Know Him.

"The other night," said the fat boarder, "I slept in a room with a generous gentleman. I snore horribly—in fact, I'm a snorer from my back. We retired. In the morning when we arose this gentleman handed me a silver half dollar."

"What's that for?" said I.

"Oh, take it," he replied. "You have won it. You deserve it."

"But what for?" said I.

"Oh, take the money and go and buy yourself several first class drinks. I like you. You are the best one I ever saw. You are the only man I ever saw who could more louder than I can hold."

His Nice Way Out.

"And is this the first time you have experienced the sensation of love?" she asked.

"It is," he replied.

"Am I the first girl you ever told you loved?" she persisted.

He hesitated. What might not have come to his ears. "You must remember," he said at last, "how easy it is for the ignorant and uninitiated to accept a base imitation for the real thing."—Chicago Post.

Do You Play the Clarinet?

Thousands of people are learning to play the piano. There is no demand for piano players; indeed, in some places they are prohibited. But there is a demand for clarinet players. A good clarinet player is always in demand and makes good wages. Why don't some of the foolish people take clarinet lessons?—Atchison Globe.

A Young Diplomat.

"What are you laughing at?" exclaimed the schoolmaster.

"Please, sir," said the boy, "I'm laughing at my own way it would be if I laughing at the boys put a butt pin on your chair and you discovered it before—before—in time, sir, and then whipped him."—Philadelphia North American.

In East Indian schools mental arithmetic is a vastly more serious matter than it is in the schools of this country. Catch questions are so numerous and piled up to ten years are taught to carry the multiplication table up to 40 times 40.

BICYCLE MEET

AT DESERONTO

The First Bicycle Meet of the Bay of Quinte Racing League is bound to be a big success. Each Club in the League sends its fastest men to compete in the League Races.

DESERONTO BICYCLE PARK

The pick of the clubs in Belleville, Picton, Kingston, Napanee, Trenton and Deseronto will be there to make the fastest time they ever made.

The finest and fastest track in Eastern Ontario. Riders who have tried it declare it to be perfect. Half a mile track—the best distance. Everybody can see the races from start to finish. Nothing to obstruct the view. Refreshments on the grounds. Don't forget the date—

DOMINION DAY

Saturday, July 1, 1939

Excursion Rates, both by Rail and Water

The Railway will issue tickets at such low rates that no person can have a plausible excuse for staying away. The Steamboat Lines offer such inducements that it would be folly to stay home when there is a chance to enjoy such good races.

The Prize List

is an inducement for all riders to compete. Valuable prizes are offered for competition in all races. The list of entries is large as the prizes are well worth trying for.

The Belleville Bicycle Club are determined to make this the greatest Bicycle Meet Eastern Canada has ever known. Postpone all other engagements and come to Deseronto to enjoy good sport.

8 = BIG EVENTS = 8

Every race will be keenly contested, as all the riders are keen to make their merits known.

Saturday is the day Deseronto will celebrate. All the stores are expected to close from 1 to 6 p. m.

Deseronto Citizens' Band..

Will discourse sweet music to enraptured throngs on this occasion.

We are now beginning to feel the heat of rain. It is getting pretty dry. Most of the crops are looking fine, but if a drought sets in now it will cause us trouble.

Miss Norma Crawford is writing for the entrance at Picton.

NAPANEE MILLS.

It is always pleasant to record pleasant things, says a writer. A most pleasing "at home" was given by Mrs. C. W. McCall on Thursday evening last. 20th inst. Invitations were issued for 6 o'clock at the appointed time about fifty guests assembled. Games and dancing were indulged in until 11:30, when refreshments were served. The party broke up about 12 o'clock, every one expressing to Mr. and Mrs. McCall how much they had enjoyed the evening. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCall were unrepentant in their efforts to see that all enjoyed themselves and that no one was neglected.

The congregation of St. Jude's will give an entertainment July 7. A good programme is being prepared. There will be refreshments as well. The church people hope to make this the event of the season.

Geo. Rook met with an accident Monday last. He had returned from the mill with a load of cracked grain. Driving into the barn he unhitched the trace, at least three chains, when he leaped the horse sprang forward, dragging the wagon out of the barn, throwing Mr. Rook down and cutting his head in a frightful manner. His daughter found him lying in the yard. The doctor put several stitches in the wound. He is progressing favorably at present.

POULTRY. Chickens, per pair, 20 to 30. Turkeys, per pair, 10 to 12. Spring ducks, per pair, 10 to 12.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES. Turnips, per bag, 40 to 50. Potatoes, per bag, 90 to 100.

Toronto Live Stock. Toronto, June 28.—Receipts of live stock at the cattle market were large yesterday. 88 carloads, composed of 1,400 calves, 800 sheep, 1,500 hogs and 80 calves. The quality of fat cattle, stall-fed, was fair, but there were a large number of carcasses of inferior quality. Trade was fairly good for all cattle of good quality, and Friday's prices for such were well maintained, but grass-fed cattle were not much in request, only for Montreal market. Stall-fed calves are becoming scarce.

Total receipts last week: Cattle 3,501. Sheep 8,700. Hogs 9,000. 471 calves. Export cattle, light, 4 7/8 to 4 9/8. Butchers' cattle, light, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Butchers' good, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Butchers' medium, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Butchers' common, 3 5/8 to 4 1/8. Butchers' inferior, 3 5/8 to 4 1/8. Milk cows, each, 30 to 40. Bulls, dry exp. good, 3 7/8 to 4 1/8. Bulls, medium exp., 3 5/8 to 4 1/8. Edged but. and exp. hxd, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Stockers and feed, to get 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Feeders, heavy, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Calves, each, 2 1/8 to 3 1/8. Sheep, per cwt, 40 to 50. Spring lambs, each, 3 1/8 to 4 1/8. Hogs, 100 to 200 lbs., 3 1/8 to 4 1/8. Hogs, light fats, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Hogs, heavy fats, 4 1/8 to 4 3/8. Hogs, sows, 3 1/8 to 4 1/8.

East Buffalo Cattle Market. East Buffalo, June 28.—Cattle.—There was a fairly active trade yesterday, the offerings being drawn from Monday's close. Prices ruled about the same at the close, but generally steady.

Sheep and lambs.—There was hardly a quotable change in the market. The basis of lamb prices was $5.30 to $5.75, and sheep $5 to $5.25.

Hogs.—The bulk of the sales were at $4.00 for light hogs and $4 for medium. Hogs sold, $3.40 to $5.00; sows, $3.75.

Liverpool Markets. Liverpool, June 28.—Wheat closed at these figures yesterday: Wheat, spot dull; No. 1 standard old, 64 3/4; No. 2 R.W., 64; No. 1 Northern, spring, 64 1/4; No. 1 Bombay, 64 1/4. Futures steady. July 5 1/4; 8 1/4; Malat, spot quiet; mixed American, new, 64 1/4; old, 64 1/4. September, 64 1/4; October, 64 1/4. September, 64 1/4; October, 64 1/4.

The Argonauts at Hanley. Hanley, England, June 28.—The Canadian flag went over half the course on a trial yesterday in the London Rowing Club's shell, in 5 minutes 59 seconds, the best time thus far for the season.

Yesterday morning the Argonauts' eight completed their time in making spurs of a minute's duration over the course, and generally they succeeded in doing 30 strokes to the minute.

The Argonauts have decided to borrow the four-oared shell of the London Rowing Club, Clasper's being too small.

Standard Must Pay It. Montreal, June 28.—An important judgment was rendered yesterday by the court affecting the responsibility of insurance companies. After the execution of Cordelia Vian and Sam Laroque for the murder of the woman's husband, Pointe, the mother of Police and the Standard Insurance Company for the amount of the policy, $2,000, and yesterday, the court decided in the plaintiff's favor. The case will probably be appealed.

Another Big Deal. Montreal, June 28.—There is some prospect of the Dominion Steel & Iron Company of Sydney purchasing the Wallington nickel mines at Sudbury. This mineral deposit, which has the reputation of being the richest nickel mine outside of New Caledonia, has not been worked for several years. The property before the President of the company was valued at about $750,000. However, it is thought that at the present time it could be purchased for considerably less.

Entertained at Winnipeg. Winnipeg, June 28.—The members of the New Ontario Legislature touring party were entertained yesterday by the aldermen of the city and the Mayor. The majority left Winnipeg last night for home.

The Kiss. The ontario kiss is Mongolian. The ontario kiss is with the nose. The European kiss is with the mouth. The Mongolian kiss indicates that the party sniffed would be an agreeable prey. The European variety indicates of being the richest nickel mine outside of New Caledonia, has not been worked for several years. The property before the President of the company was valued at about $750,000. However, it is thought that at the present time it could be purchased for considerably less.

Mutual Help. Professor Gray—By the way, Professor Sage, what day of the month is it? To save my life, I can't think. Professor Sage: It is the 29th. And that reminds me! What month is it?—Boston Transcript.

An Ancient Building. The oldest Christian structure in Ireland is a remarkable building, evidently very ancient, but wonderfully well preserved, at Dingle, in County Kerry. It is popularly known as the "Oratory of Gallers." Who Gallers was history does not say, but as the oratory has stood practically unimpaired for more than 1,000 years, he was probably one of the converts of St. Patrick.
